++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Turning unsettled and showery today.

Today:
Sunny intervals in the east at first, but generally rather cloudy. Early rain, heavy at times, in the west spreads eastwards, just parts of the very far east escaping this rain. Heavy showers, some thundery, follow into the west later.

Tonight:
Rather cloudy and unsettled with showery rain at times in many areas, rain heavy at times. Some more persistent heavy rain develops over parts of eastern Scotland. Very mild.

Friday:
Early rain over eastern Scotland moves into northern Scotland. Otherwise, a breezy, showery day with heavy, and at times thundery, showers for many, especially Scotland, northern England and Northern Ireland.

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Remaining unsettled with temperatures around or a slightly below average. Sunshine and showers, slow-moving in the north, locally heavy with a risk of thunder.
